20th MACDONALD CRITCHLEY LECTURE

6pm, Wednesday 27 November, 2019

Apothecaries Hall, Black Friar’s Lane, London EC4V 6EJ

Joanna Bourke is the Principal Investigator on a 5-year, multi-disciplinary, Wellcome Trust-funded project entitled "Sexual Violence, Medicine, and Psychiatry". She is the prize-winning author of thirteen books, as well as over 100 articles in academic journals. She specialises in the history of medicine, psychiatry and psychology, violence, warfare, pain, masculinity, the emotions, and what it means to be human. In 2014, she was the author of The Story of Pain: From Prayer to Painkillers (Oxford University Press) and Wounding the World (Virago). Her books have been translated into Chinese, Russian, Spanish, Catalan, Italian, Portuguese, Czech, Turkish, and Greek. She is a frequent contributor to the media, including television, radio, popular journals, and newspapers.

Library open from 5pm. Refreshments from 5:30pm.
