

The background of the poster features a close-up, vertical view of a green cactus stem. A single strand of silver, three-pronged barbed wire is wrapped around the stem, creating a series of sharp, repeating points. The lighting is soft, highlighting the texture of the cactus and the metallic sheen of the wire.

David Nott is a consultant surgeon who works mainly in London hospitals as a general and vascular surgeon, but also volunteers to work in disaster and war zones. David established the David Nott Foundation to organise training in emergency surgery for others working in war and disaster zones. He has been honoured for this dangerous work and is now often styled the "Indiana Jones of surgery".
